A warm space made for a young family

Danfoss Link™ solves the heating challenges in a 70-year-old apartment

The newly renovated apartment in the centre of Jaworzno in southern Poland is just what Paweł and Beata Wrona were looking for. Built in 1945, it offers plenty of space for their 5-year-old daughter and son, aged one, to run around. The living room fireplace is a cosy feature that the whole family enjoys during the cold winter months.

Paweł, a heating engineer, decided to go for a gas heating system when the family moved in. But the initial single room installation proved problematic, as whenever a fire was lit in the fireplace the system would ‘go crazy’.

From manual to wireless

“The heat from the fireplace disrupted the system. So I had to regulate everything manually. It took some time to learn how to use the system,” Paweł says.

“We had that heating control system for just one winter. Then we switched to Danfoss living connect® thermostats with a Danfoss Link™ Central Controller, and I began using the Danfoss Link™ App on my mobile phone.

“Now, if the fireplace raises the temperature in one place, the system switches itself off automatically and turns on again when the temperature is lower.”

Set it, forget it

And this is just one of the ways that Danfoss Link™ has improved lives in the family home. Where previously, keeping everyone comfortable meant always looking for the right temperature, Paweł says this is now a thing of the past.

“It has definitely simplified my life,” he says. “With the previous system I had to constantly control the heating, the parameters and settings. And now I literally forget about it.” But best of all, Paweł concludes, what remains is a level of “full comfort” that everyone can enjoy.

Simple and intuitive app

Thanks to the Danfoss Link™ App on his phone, Paweł can even manage their home heating when the family is away. He finds it both simple and intuitive to use.

“If the system knows when to turn on so the apartment is warm by the time we have told it we will come home. If our plans change and we decide to come home sooner, all I have to do is turn on the heating using the app,” he explains.

Installation of the Danfoss Link™ App could not have been easier, and Paweł is very pleased with the service whenever he has been in touch with the Danfoss Link™ App Helpdesk.

Among his friends and colleagues, the smart heating system is a frequent topic of conversation. He happily recommends it to others.
